

Hello, World!

Welcome to my site.

This site is about one thing and one thing only:

Spreading the Gospel.

I want people who come to this site to learn about Jesus and all the great things He has done.

This will happen in a variety of ways. First and foremost, writing. I hope to write articles or blog posts that help explain the Gospel, doctrine, and theology in ways that make sense to everyday people. Every post I do will have a PDF available for download (released under the Creative Commons licenses described here.)

Second, this will happen in sermons. When I preach, I will be recording the sermons and posting them up here for free download (licensing information here).

I do appreciate feedback on all content by readers and listeners. As I post things, feel free to tell me what you think I could do to get better at what I do.

So, thanks for stopping by, and welcome. Feel free to have a look around and check things out. While you are here, feel free to sign up for my RSS feed in order to get updates as they become available.
